Washington Concern Again Gets Contract for Smooth Paving on Grace and Franklin Streets.

ALMOST COMPLETE WORK

This Year's Appropriation Will Carry Fine Driveways to Richmond College,

The action of the Street Committee yesterday afternoon in awarding contracts for continuing the scheme of minoth paying on Grace and Frankin Streets will carry the work far into the West End, and nearly complete two of the prositions driveways in or about the city.

The contract was awarded to the Washington Asphalt Block and Tile Company at $2.59 per square yard, the other bid having been submitted by T. A. Barry & Co., or this city, at $2.80 per square yard.

The blocks to be furnished by the successful bidders are identical with those silrendy laid on Grace Street from Ninth Street west, and on Frankin Street from Sirret west, and on Frankin Street from Sirret west, and on Frankin Street from Sirret west, and on Frankin Street from Fifth Street west, and on Frankin Street from Fifth Street west, and on Frankin Street from Sirret west, and on Frankin Street from Fifth Street west,

When Mayor McCarthy stepped from the car last night in front of Nelsen's Hall, in Fulton, a large delegation of about two hundred men, headed by the Rev. C. W. Galloway, pastor of the Denny Street Methodist Church, surrounded and applauded him heartlly. After a general handshaking, His Honor was conducted upstairs into the hall, where a large number of ladies and gentlemen waited to receive him.

The hall was packed to its capacity, and the meeting was enthusiastic throughout. After a selection by the Fulton Mandolin Club, Rev. Mr. Galloway introduced the Mayor, who spoke on the "Point of View of the Good Citizens." The talk was in part a practical address on everyday cive morality, and in part a resistement of the main points of his recent address at the Academy of Music. The speaker, who was really preaching a practical sermon, used several Scripture texts to illustrate his talk. From these he led up to a discussion of the value of honesty and uprightness, in municipal affairs. Beginning, the Mayor said:

"I aw, order, all the practical things of life, business, are founded on the great religious truths of hope and faith. Morality is as necessary to our physical existence as to our spiritual welfare.

True Bilis Against Refining Cor- Elder Turney Stole $106,000 from poration and New York Central.

NEW YORK, April 3 .- It was understood yesterday, upon trustworthy information, that while the Federal grand jury has not completed its investigation into the alleged relating practices of the saint have not only been decided upon, but actually drawn.

These two indictments, which, it is reliably understood, name the sugar trust and the New York Central Railway Company, are to be the forerunners of other which will name according to the same authority, secral trunk lines carrying westbound freight.

There is every probability also that indictments will be returned against the officials of the various companies as individuals, the Eikhns anti-trust laws providing for such findings.

The two indictments thus far decided upon will be handed down, it is likely, before next Friday. What action the Federal authorities will take is decidedly interesting to lawyers, because of the peculiar provisions of the Eikins law and the further fact that corporations are not, os a rule, indictible. Exactly how Henry L, Stimson, United States district attorney, proposes to arrest a corporation is a matter neither he nor United States Marshal Henkel will discuss.

The penalty set by the Eikins law is a fine, of not less than $1,000 nor more than $20,000. As the traffic of the sugar trust represents a trifle more than forty per cent, of the entire westbound freight carried by the westbound trunk line associations, it is not improbable, lawyers not retained by corporations point out, that the railways, if convicted, will not seriously regard even the maximum fine. The law states with great particularity that no imprisonment shall be inflicted.

In Tombs Police Court yesterday for the embezziement of $4,000 from the National Bank of North America, and waived examination. He was held in $10,000 ball to await the action of the grand jury. It came out to-day that the father of Turney himself stole from the same bank $166,000 in 1877.

The elder Turney was never prosecuted by the bank officials. He reimbursed the bank to the extent of $0,000, making the net loss to the institution $100,000.

In stealing the $100,000, Turney, who was the paying teller, acted with another amploye of the bank. The president of the institution, during the time he stole the $100,000, was William Dowd, who was vice-president of the New York Clearing House.

A former director of the bank, in recalling the elder Turney's defalcation, said:

"One morning in 1877 the paying teller, Mr. Turney, went to Mr. Dowd and confessed that he had for a long time been abstracting funds of the bank, with the connivance of another clork, and that the money had been lost in speculation."
